Forgery trial set Monday

By BRENT MACEY

The trial of John V. Ladner, a Hancock County election commissioner, is scheduled for Monday when the April term of the County Circuit Court convenes under Circuit Court Judge Leslie B. Grant.

Ladner is charged with forgery in connection with emergency repairs at Gulfview Elementary School during the summer of 1980.

He allegedly signed two checks totalling $4,480 in the name of Tommy Lane. The checks were issued by the County School District for painting work at the school which was damaged by a tornado in May of that year.

Also included on the docket is the James Billiot case.

Billiot is charged with capital murder in connection with the sledge hammer killing of his mother, stepfather and stepmother on Thanksgiving Day.

However, Defense Attorney Nicholas (Mac) Haas thinks the trial will not be heard this term.

Haas said he and Attorney Yvonne Chapman Sills are planning to file several motions when court convenes. "I think the state will probably ask for a continuance," he said.

The case of Fannie Dell Johnson, a former employee at the Hancock County Youth Court, is also included on the April court docket.

Johnson is charged with 24 counts of uttering forgery in connection with her alleged signing of some $2,000 in checks payable to that office by juveniles who were making restitution for crimes.

A trial for Henry Otis, Hancock County Circuit Clerk, is also scheduled for the April session.

Otis is charged with embezzling some $49,000 from the Circuit Clerk's office. The charges followed an special investigation by the Mississippi Department of Audit last year.

The trial of Henry Paul Jordan, a former Bay St. Louis police officer who allegedly shot and injured his wife following the shooting death of Waveland contractor Robert Haggart last year, is also set for the April term.

Jordan is charged with aggravated assault.

Pot siezed in Leetown

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A Leetown Community couple were arrested Friday night in connection with drugs seized in a raid by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson Saturday said, "Clarence Steve Lee, 26, and his wife Linda Darlene Lee, 21, of Route 1, Box 24, Restor Road, Picayune, were arrested and charged with possession of more than a kilogram of marijuana with intent to sell or deliver. An assortment of pills, some believed to be quaaludes, were also found in the raid."

The sheriff reported approximately 44,000 pills in bottles were in the residence and he was advised by the District Attorney's office to confiscate them.

The pills, many of them in bottles of 1,000, were labeled as decongestant capsules and others as stimulant capsules.

The sheriff said approximately two ounces of marijuana was found inside the house and a suitcase full of the weed was found just outside the house.

"We feel some of the capsules contain caffeine and we are going to take them to the Mississippi Gulf Coast Crime Lab to have them analyzed. It is possible other charges will be brought against the Leetown couple," Peterson added.

A tip on the possibility of drugs being at the residence was received by the sheriff's office and a surveillance was conducted and a search warrant was secured from Justice Court Judge Horatio Frierson, said Hancock Investigator Alvin Ladner who is in charge of the investigation.

The two were each released on a $10,000 bond from the Hancock County Jail and are scheduled for preliminary hearing before Frierson on April 14.

A trial date for Fritz Garcia, accused of rape, armed robbery, two counts of kidnapping, burglary of a dwelling and carrying a concealed weapon following conviction of a felony, is set for April 14.

All the crimes for which Garcia is charged occurred shortly after his release from prison last year. Garcia allegedly kidnapped a Hancock County couple who offered him a ride, tied up the man and raped the woman at gun point.

The trial of Charles Edward Tague is scheduled again April 4. A trial last term ended with a hung jury following the maneuvers by Bay St. Louis attorney James Tucker III, which, in part, discredited testimony by two juveniles who claimed they were with Tague at the time of the robberies. Fingerprints linking Tague to the crime were also not available at the previous court trial.

An arson trial for Jack Berry, accused of setting fire to the Hancock County Jail which burned him in the resulting blaze is also set for the April Court term.

Family ties bring 'no' votes by county school officials

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

All Hancock County School District Board members attending a Saturday meeting voted against re-hiring at least one non-certified employee for the 1982-1983 school year because of close family ties.

The board members voted against hiring relatives apparently to avoid charges of nepotism.

Billy D. Sills, superintendent of education, said the board approved all non-certified employees requesting reinstatement except teacher aides.

The superintendent recommended the board not approve re-hiring the aides until the amount of Federal Title One funding for the district is known.

Motivel Cuevas, board president, was the only board member not attending the meeting.

No county school patrons or observers attended the meeting.

Non-certified personnel includes secretaries, bus drivers, janitors, cafeteria workers and the aides.

George Ladner, a board member, voted against hiring Barbara Ladner at Gulfview Elementary School, and Billy Ladner at Hancock North Central High School.

Woodrow Ladner, board vice president, opposed employing Linda Wedgeworth and Margie Ladner at the high school.

George Ladner also opposed hiring Andrea Ladner as a substitute teacher at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School for the remainder of this school year because she is related to the board member. The board approved hiring the woman.

Regarding bleacher construction at the Gulfview and Murphy football fields, Sills reported that Mississippi National Guard Co. D of the 860th Engineers in Picayune will construct the seating facilities this summer.

He reported that Fox Everett Insurance Co. of Gulfport can provide the type of liability insurance the National Guard company requires to perform such work at schools.

In other business at the 9 a.m. meeting at the Dan M. Russell Sr. Memorial Youth Court Center on Court Street in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Approved a field trip in April by the HNC Elementary second grade classes to the Audubon Zoo in New Orleans;

—Approved a April 23 field trip by the HNC gifted and talented class to attend an opera at the Performing Arts Center in New Orleans;

—Approved paying expenses for Rhea Scaffidi, a district office staff member, to obtain a notary commission;

—Approved paying expenses for Martin Hill, student services director, to attend an April 13 meeting at Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Perkinston to discuss changes in special education laws with Dr. Walter Moore, guidance director of the State Department of Education;

—Approved paying expenses for Neil Metheny, Jeannette Handshoe, Karen Cayot and Hill to attend two three-day state education department workshops, April 21-23 and May 3-5, at the University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park branch in Long Beach regarding referral and placement processes;

—Approved a one-year agreement for $135 with Tennessee Gas Pipeline Co. to renew a lease of 1.2 acres in Section 16-9-15 for a pipeline right-of-way;

—Heard a report from Sills that Mississippi Power Co.'s proposed high-voltage power line in northern Hancock will cross 16th Section school land;

—Heard reports from George and Woodrow Ladner commending Gulfview students for their recent musical production of Cinderella;

—Heard a report from Woodrow Ladner that bleachers in the Gulfview gymnasium need repair. Sills said a district maintenance man would begin repairs this week;

—Heard a report from Sills that new curtains for the HNC gymnasium stage would cost $2,000-$3,000 and that cost would be considered in formulating next year's budget.

To aid Social Security recipients

First mini-semester slated at Vo-Tech

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Pearl River Junior College Hancock County Vocational and Technical Training Center at Stennis International Airport for the first time in its history is offering a mini-semester of two accredited college courses to local residents.

The primary reason for the special semester is to help this year's high school graduates receiving social security allowances to retain these benefits.

The program is identical to one offered at PRJC in Poplarville.

Al Bourgeois, center director, explained President Ronald Reagan's budget reduction plan calls for elimination of social security benefits by May 1 for high school graduates not enrolled in a college by that date.

James Thrifflay of Bay St. Louis and Billy D. Sills of Hancock County, both College Board of Trustees members, Friday reported that many high school students in the county whose father's have died or are disabled depend on social security benefits to help support their families.

Woody Pearce, center guidance counselor, Friday said individuals interested in registering for the course may telephone the school at 467-3568 for more information.

"This is the first time we have offered a mini-semester here at Vo-Tech. Typically, courses extend over a 17-week period with classes meeting three times per week," Bourgeois cited.

Sills said he suggested the Vo-Tech mini-semester after Dr. Marvin White, college dean, revealed plans at a recent board meeting for the special semester at the Poplarville campus.

"I took the initiative to see what we could do for the people of our county. I was primarily concerned about students in the County School District because they come from a predominantly rural area where incomes are low," Sills stated.

"But seniors at Bay Senior High School, Our Lady's Academy and St. Stanislaus High School may also take advantage of these courses," he said.

Thrifflay noted the mini-semester meets all requirements for a full-time course load and has been approved as such by the Social Security Administration.

"I would like to thank the dean for offering these courses and Sills for spearheading efforts to establish the Vo-Tech classes," he stated.

Thrifflay reported that tuition for the two courses is $155. He said a student residing outside the Pearl River district—which includes Hancock, Pearl River, Lamar and Forest Counties—must pay an additional $27 fee and an extra $125 fee is assessed to out-of-state students.

Thrifflay speculated students from Slidell will attend the Vo-Tech classes.

Bourgeois said although there is a fee for the courses, each student will receive about $12,000 in social security benefits over a four-year period by taking steps to further their education before the deadline.

Thrifflay stated, "This special semester is designed to meet the government's deadline, but the classes are also open to everyone."

"These courses offer a quick way for a beginning student to earn credits on basic required courses," he explained.

Bourgeois added that students receiving social security benefits will be given "first priority" in enrollment.

Havens expresses 'shock, dismay' in rate hike case

Lynn Havens, chairman of the Mississippi Public Service Commission, has expressed his shock and dismay that the state Supreme Court has chosen to increase the electric rates charged by Mississippi Power Company.

Havens said the commission has recommended a 10 percent rate increase for the company's customers, but the court has decided to increase the rates by 15 percent.

"The commission is totally committed to reducing electric rates to the absolute minimum required under the law," Havens said.

"In this case, the commission has recommended a 10 percent rate increase, but the court has decided to increase the rates by 15 percent. This is a shock and dismay to the commission and its members."

and only allowed $10,000,000 of the request."

"It is disappointing that all of this effort by the commission and its experts has now been nullified by a single judge of the state Supreme Court. This is a shock and dismay to the commission and its members."

Havens said the commission has no alternative but to appeal this judge's decision to the state Supreme Court for the protection of the rate payers of Mississippi Power Company and continue to work with the commission to reduce rates.

Two arrested for Rx forgery

By BRENT MACEY

Two Bay Side Park residents were arrested and charged with prescription forgery following a search of their residence Thursday by officials from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and the Waveland Police Department.

Hancock Sheriff's Department Investigator Alvin Ladner stated Paul D. Buras, 34, and Tom Madere, 34, both of Route 2, Box 444, Bay St. Louis, were arrested at approximately noon Thursday at their residence.

Buras was charged with one count of prescription forgery and Madere is charged with three counts of prescription forgery and possession of a schedule-one controlled substance (a drug not prescribed by a doctor).

The arrests followed an investigation into prescription forgery at local drug stores where prescriptions obtained by doctors were being altered in some way," Ladner said.

He stated the quantity of drugs prescribed to Buras and Madere by a doctor had been changed after the prescription was obtained. Also the

We received a telephone call bright and early Thursday morning from Mrs. Henry Poillion Sr. thanking us for using the photo of the azalea bush on the grave of her son in the Cedar Rest Cemetery in our paper.

Mrs. Poillion said her son, Henry Jr. was killed in Germany in 1944 and one of his former grammar school teachers, Ms. Carmelite Spatona, had given the family the azalea to plant on his grave.

We appreciate Mrs. Poillion giving us the history of the bush which is so beautiful each year. It has a history of over 35 years.

A lot of folks are setting catfish lines at this time of the year and many are not complying to the law.

The game wardens as we used to know them and are now referred to as conservation officers have been given orders to remove all trot lines they find in the waters which do not contain a 10-foot cotton length at each end of the line.

Apparently there have been several accidents caused by all nylon lines remaining in the water after the fishing season's over with and it will not rot.

The cotton ends are for safety measures and will decay after awhile. We are also told the lines must be underwater, not sticking out as well as having identification.

We suggest those running trot lines would be wise to check with a member of the conservation department to make sure they do it correctly.

We have several areas designated for handicap parking in our business communities.

It just amazes us as to how folks who are not handicapped use these reserved parking spaces.

There is a reason for the designated areas, and we wish folks without handicaps would let them open for persons needing their use.

We received a telephone call Friday from the parent of one of the Tiger Pride band members in the Bay saying she had received word that everyone had arrived in Washington, D.C. on schedule.

The parent did mention she had heard a national food chain had called the school to complement them on the way the Tiger Pride members behaved when they stopped in the restaurant.

We called Mr. Robert Magee and he told us he had received a telephone call from the morning manager of a Hardy's Restaurant in a small town in South Carolina.

She told Mr. Magee she just had to call him and tell him how her restaurant is visited by all types of groups of people and how the Bay High Band students were, 'the nicest group of young people they have ever had stop in their restaurant.'

We feel this is a great thing for someone to voluntarily call long distance about, and it shows the fine job our school system's administration, teachers and supporters are doing. And the Tiger Pride members, we are very proud of them.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I have become very concerned about the environment and our diminishing quality of life, especially advertising's role in making more people want more things they don't need. But you won't print this anyway, so I should have saved my paper, ink and stamps. Trying To Save Our World.

Dear TTOW: Thank you for the note. While I disagree in part with you, it doesn't bother me at all for you to express your opinion.

First, let me agree with your concern for the environment. Everyone should be concerned and most are. The balance of nature must include man, however, and here's where most of the disagreement begins.

"Quality of life" is where I begin to get puzzled. A humanistic and, I hope, also practical concern for "quality" of life must encompass all of mankind.

I fail to comprehend how your or my quality of life can be much greater than anyone else's. Conscience would be a humanistic factor; survival is a practical one.

Advertising makes the marketing system work, which makes the manufacturing system work. When these two systems work—people work. When they don't work, people don't work either.

Out of work people don't have much quality of life. Survival may not depend on meaningful work, but quality of life does.

So, to indict advertising as a culprit is to indict the whole system that provides employment and necessary goods.

As you indicate some goods would not seem to be needed by all, but who are we to make this judgement? This decision has to be made by the individual consumers, which they can only do if the goods are available.

Preservation of resources is necessary. But, if for instance, everyone converted to firewood for fuel, how long could the forests last? It's easy enough for a few, but certainly no long term answer for everyone.

We all need to quit looking for short term easy answers and avoid pointing the finger of blame indiscriminately.

Quality of life to some means plenty of gasoline and abundant goods and luxuries from which to select; for others, it may mean Walden's pond. But for everyone, quality of life means the freedom and resource to make these decisions for themselves.

So I'm afraid you'll have to find a more sinister force than the gentle persuasion of advertising to blame for our troubles.

Moreover, every reference to the past seems to be in the context of "the good old days" when life was simpler; but most politicians and other contemporary oracles repeatedly referred to their day as "these trying times."

Washington Report

By Congressman Trent Lott
5th District, Mississippi

There is a variety of good news in America today that you don't always hear about. I want to share a few items from last week which I believe reflect an emerging, positive attitude in the national government.

The first has to do with the rate of inflation.

I was startled a few days ago when I saw a survey which showed that the American people do not believe or are not aware that the rate of inflation has dropped dramatically.

Maybe it is the oil glut, maybe it is a policy of tight money, maybe it is a sign that the economic recovery program is working, but inflation, once the nation's number one problem, has been held under 5 percent for the past four months.

The rate is truly remarkable when you remember that just 15 months ago the annual rate of inflation was 13.4 percent.

I suppose the most obvious place for the decrease to be noticed is at the gas pump, but there are other places, too. I think we need to realize that, in time, the reduction in the inflation rate will have an impact on other areas, such as interest rates.

The fact of the matter is that we have made real progress in reducing inflation and even though we have a ways to go to solve other problems, I'm proud of our record on inflation.

My second piece of good news involves Navy shipbuilding.

One complaint I've heard from other Members of Congress has been on wasteful or over-spending for military weapons systems. Some have said that controlling such costs is of paramount importance to them.

There has been solid progress in saving money on Navy shipbuilding. Last week, it was announced that construction of the first completed since early 1961, a result of cost savings of approximately $1 million and early completions totaling almost 900 days.

The largest portion of the $91 million savings came with construction of four KIDD-class destroyers by Ingalls Shipbuilding, which is located in my congressional district. The shipyard saved $35 million for the four vessels, the last of which was delivered to the Navy in February.

I testified before a House subcommittee on water resources that the user fee system proposed would adversely affect ports in my district. While I support comprehensive, national port legislation, I feel that user fees are inherently unfair and unworkable.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Woman charged in drug offenses

Blame troubles on newspaper

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

I was there today and read all the lies that have been printed about me. But now I want to speak my peace. My name is Toni Madere and about a month ago your paper printed an article about my being arrested.

First let me say I have never been in a town where so many people have nothing better to do with their time except to write their tongues like dogs in heat. Especially about things they really know nothing about.

So now I am going to straighten out all the busy bodies.

Yes, I was arrested for prescription forgery.

I was arrested for a allergy drug which I have taken since I was 9 years old, and which my doctor legally prescribes for me by the hundred.

The paper also said me and Pat Kingston, divided these drugs up.

I want to tell you I never knew Pat Kingston before this article hit the paper.

I couldn't have told you what she looked like if we had met on the street face to face.

Since the article I have met Ms. Kingston, what I have found out about her is she is a decent, kind woman, with children, like myself, and she is just trying to make a living and be left alone, as I am doing.

Since all this stuff has come up I have lost my job and can't even get a prescription filled here.

Just yesterday a druggist here told a friend of mine I had been convicted of burglary. I had been arrested for forgery in St. Louis, he also said the credit told him so with my prescription.

Yes, I was arrested in St. Louis for forgery because my ex-husband signed a statement saying I forged his name to our personal checks, because I sign them as Toni Madere.

I think most women sign their husbands' names to their checks. So any of them could be arrested for this, if their husbands wanted to pursue it.

Also would like to thank the person who stole my color TV, 193n. Sanyo last Friday night as it was about the only enjoyment me and my children could afford.

I must say I have no friends in this town and the tongue waggers are making it impossible for us to live here. Why don't you all just come burn me out, you'll just about gotten everything I have worked for.

I also want to take this time to tell all the junkies I am not in the drug business and want to be left alone.

Your newspaper gave great advertisement, I even have had to have my number changed.

I am trying to raise my children and want everyone to leave me alone to do this. I have never hurt anyone, in fact I have helped many people here.

Please print this for me, as your paper, I feel is partly responsible for all this happening. I would think, I would try to find the whole truth, before I print things that ruin people's lives.

Thank you
Toni Madere

Dear Mr. Editor,

I saw my picture in Echo paper Sunday. It was horrible.

But I guess it couldn't be helped because the picture was in color.

Mr. Editor, would you be so kind to retract that I am Gold Star Mother, which I am not.

I am a member of WWI 12 years past president and chaplain 10 years in Biloxi, two years here in Bay St. Louis.

Our president Lucille Boudreaux and Mrs. Dena Curvey honored WWI group with tea party at her home in Waveland.

Please retract and put it right, because when my members read it in Echo paper they will be mad at me. I don't want to lose my friends.

I remain,

Jackson Audubon Society offering program to return Bluebird to stateMarch 31, 1982
Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

Our bluebird trail project was a great success for 1982.

The Jackson Audubon Society sold over 3,000 bluebird houses at cost and buyers were well distributed over Mississippi.

Without your help in telling this story we could not have reached this high degree of success.

We are able to offer this same project for 1982 at the same $3 each, at cost.

Our club does not retain a cent of this. All of the money collected goes directly to the builders to defray cost of lumber and other materials.

It is really an at cost project. The Jackson Audubon Society again will sell approved North American Bluebird Society houses at cost ($3 each, minimum order 10).

We are emphasizing bluebird trails again for another year. Detailed literature free with each purchase. Send your check by June 1, 1982 for the number of houses wanted, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for us to communicate with you about when and where to pick up your houses in Jackson.

By setting this early date we hope to have all houses ready to be picked up by Nov. 1, 1982.

Send your check and self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Jackson Bluebird Project, Box 21257, Jackson, Mississippi, 39211.

Very truly yours,

R. B. Layton, Chairman
Jackson Bluebird Project

Catholic editor pleads for arms race end

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article from the column "The Examined Life" by Robert E. Burns of Chicago, Ill., executive editor of the magazine "U.S. Catholic," is reprinted with permission from its publication.

Less than a decade after the end of our part in the barbarous war in Vietnam we are preparing ourselves to fight other wars.

When I say "we" I don't mean merely a handful of political candidates whose greed is so frenzied that they have the guts to draw the line and say "No" to war-making.

I mean particularly the majorities of American citizens who if Messrs. Gallup and Harris are to be believed would be willing for the United States to spill the blood of countless Americans in an effort to grab oil reserves that anything important anyway") and not by us?

Do those who are willing to spill blood to get all that we could easily do without think that a war between the United States and Russia could be limited to what we call with blood-chilling flippancy "conventional weapons" and that it would not lead inevitably to nuclear exchanges?

When I wrote about war and peace last December and described the ghastly scenario that might take place here during a nuclear war, one good reader, with mock seriousness, thanked me for spoiling her Christmas.

But I had only scratched the surface. I was writing only about those who would be fortunate enough to die in a nuclear war. Imagine nuclear weapons exploding within, say, 100 miles of your home.

Electric power is discontinued. (If your electric power comes from a nuclear reactor, you may not need to read further.) The water supply is contaminated and transportation is at a standstill.

Your place of employment will, of course, be closed. If you have cash on hand to buy food, you might be able to eat for a while provided you can find a store that has uncontaminated groceries and is open for business.

Forget about money in the bank. What banks would be open and who would be willing to exchange goods for money backed by a government that may no longer exist?

And all the while there are the sick and the dying to be cared for and the dead to be buried, our relatives and friends among them. The streets will be littered with them. Are we really willing to accept this for oil or to avenge our "humiliation"?

Both the carpetbaggers in Washington and the phony medicine men who want to replace them cry out that we must balance the federal budget to avoid economic catastrophe, but when they propose budget cuts, the military budget is sacrosanct. Who would be silly enough to suggest that it should be enough that we are able to annihilate our enemies 100 times over rather than 100 times over?

Some politicians are shouting that the United States is not prepared to fight a war and God knows they may be right. But I haven't heard anyone asking why the more than a trillion dollars (that's a million million, folks) that we've spent an arms since we fled Vietnam hasn't brought preparedness. The answer to the problem, of course is to throw more billions at it.

Meanwhile the moral issues in this insanity are all but ignored. Like his two great predecessors, Pope John Paul seems never to tire of pleading that we end the arms race. Recently he said: "The situation in which humanity is living today seems to include a tragic contradiction between the many fervent declarations in favor of peace and the no less real escalation in weaponry. The very existence of the arms race can even cast a suspicion of falsehood and hypocrisy" on certain declarations of the desire for peaceful coexistence."

While it might be comforting to believe that his remarks are directed at Russia only, this is clearly not true. They are directed at all who are engaged in the arms race. If all the American Catholics who have been proclaiming their love and admiration for Pope John Paul would heed his words and implore their representatives to end the arms race now, what a difference it might make.

Some years ago an eloquent indictment of the arms race came from what some might consider an unlikely source: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children. This is not a way of life, at all, in any true sense. Under the cloud of threatening war, it is humanity hanging from a cross of iron."

If you guessed Dwight D. Eisenhower, you guessed right.

MOONSHINERS—Members of the Moonshiners, a newly formed group of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, from left: Jan Rawls, president; Susan Harmon, treasurer; and Cindy Harvard, secretary; participate in a macrame class being conducted by Rawls. The Moonshiners, currently consisting of some 12 members, meet the final Thursday of every month at 9:30 a.m. in the Farm Bureau in Kiln to undertake a different project. The group will be doing macrame again next month. Other projects for the year will include raising money to help support the handicapped. Anyone interested in joining should attend the next meeting. (Staff photo by Brent Macey).

Blindness society changes name, appoints spokesman

Two announcements of statewide interest were recently revealed by the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness.

Military Mentions

PFC. DENNAN
Pfc. Roger D. Dennen, son of George M. Dennen of 211 Surf Drive, Waveland, and grandson of Mall Dennen of Sumiton, Ala., was one of approximately 2,500 soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade, Fort Benning, Ga., who participated in four weeks of cold weather training at Fort McCoy, Wis. After being issued cold weather equipment the soldiers began training in survival, movement by skis and snowshoes, and small-unit techniques. Members of the brigade also participated in training exercises for company-size and larger units. Dennen is an artillery fire-support specialist. He is a 1977 graduate of Walker High School, Jasper, Ala.

for the Society this year. Archie is well-known throughout the state and the nation as the Ole Miss quarterback who has gone on to fame with the Saints. He will be urging his fellow Mississippians to use protective eyewear and to have regular vision check-ups to save their sight. Archie will assist in educational and fund raising events for the Society also.

The second announcement is a major one as it signals a new image of the Society in the state. By vote of the Board of Directors the name of the health agency is now the National Society to Prevent Blindness—Mississippi Affiliate. This change is being made by all affiliates of the National Society to create a more uniform and cohesive national image. William Barnett, Jackson attorney and president of the affiliate states that the Society was founded in 1961 to provide citizens of every age with educational and informative materials, screening for vision problems like amblyopia and glaucoma, seminars in eye care for professionals, and safety programs structured for students of every school age as well as for workers in industry and agriculture. It is a non-profit agency supported by contributions.

Serving with Mr. Barnett on the Executive Committee in 1982 are Mrs. Donette Lee, president-elect; Thomas Hontzas, financial vice-president; Paige Koon, public information vice-president; Art Nabers, safety vice-president; Mrs. Richard Blount, program vice-president; Harold Weese, treasurer; Marshall Bennett, secretary; and Dr. John Milam, medical advisory chairman.

Diamondhead group seeks new members

The 1982 officers and board members of the Diamondhead Community Association are conducting a membership drive, according to Ms. Hilda Bourg, president.

Residents of Diamondhead, full time or part time, are urged to join. Dues are $5 per year per family, payable to the Diamondhead Community Association, P. O. Box 12, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Anyone receiving mail at an address other than Diamondhead should include that address.

District honors NSTL Explorer Post advisor

Terry Lemon, advisor of the National Space Technology Laboratories, Space Ocean Earth Explorer Post 181, has been selected Explorer Advisor of the year by the Pine Bluff District of the Pine Bluff Area Council.

The award was presented to Lemon at a recent ceremony by Richard Wilhite, Pine Bluff Area Council field director. Lemon, a resident of Long Beach and a Rockledge electronics technician at NSTL, has headed Post 181 since the group was organized last May.

Since that time the Post has grown from 62 charter members and six associate advisors to its current 165 members and 17 associate advisors, several of whom are NSTL employees.

The Post is sponsored by the NSTL Recreational Association.

"All phases of scouting, from Cub to Explorer, develop character and patriotism plus a sense of personal pride and integrity," Lemon said. "Besides, it's a lot of fun. But mainly it helps each child learn more about the grown-up he or she has the potential to become. The kids in Post 181 are very special to me."

The Space-Oceans-Earth Post meets every other Monday at 6 p.m. in the auditorium of NSTL's Visitors Center.

Following a general business meeting, the members participate in workshops, games, and other activities. Activities include: design, rocket engine design, and white and cast. Computer programming, remote control and amateur radio operation.

Single members, ages 14 to 20, are most interested. For more information, contact Lemon at 665-3211.

23. CARD OF THANKS

GARDEN CLUB SPRING PILGRIMAGE

I wish to take this method of communication to express my thanks and appreciation to the many (approximately 375 to 400) visitors who toured my home on the Garden Club Spring Pilgrimage March 24.

I found every visitor—local, from other states, as well as foreign shores—to be courteous, kind and sincere. To my hostesses I owe a debt of gratitude, for without them the task would have been impossible—Mrs. Ray O. Coleman and Mrs. Fred Small who remained with me all day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Ms. Lille Burke, Ms. Mildred Bancher, Ms. Jean Gleim, Mrs. John Lange, Mrs. Lelyn Nybo, and Mrs. John Newkirk.

Mr. Keller's crew deserves a thank you, (even though the grader was still busy cleaning the beach during the pilgrimage.)

To the City of Waveland crews, many thanks for those special pickups that helped to make us look so good.

To the many homeowners who are reluctant to put their homes on the tour, may I close by saying it was a most enjoyable experience.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Russell F. Sutton, Jr.

Bay mayor affirms support of seniors

By WAYNE DUCOMBE JR.

Mayor Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis Friday pledged the city would not withdraw its support of the Hancock County Senior Citizen's Program even if state funding ends.

Bennett, elected officials and individuals are now attempting to convince Department of Public Welfare officials not to withdraw financial support for senior citizen programs across the state.

State funding for these day-care facilities is scheduled to end on July 1. The Hancock program provides hot noon meals, transportation, socialization, arts and crafts instruction, and field trips for many elderly citizens.

Bennett said the city gives the seniors program and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program housing and utilities at the Valena C. Jones Complex on Old Spanish Trail.

"We provide the building as an in-kind contribution to match state funding," he explained.

The mayor reported the city also provides $75-per-month to RSVP as cash support of that program.

Bennett said he has written Gov. William Winter several times requesting the state funding be continued.

"I've had many people call me inquiring if the city would withdraw its support of the program, so I want to let the citizens know I told them I have no intention of closing the facility," he explained.

The mayor said the city's financial condition would not allow an increase of support for the two programs.

"We can't increase our support because the city is in dire need of other things," he stated.

Bennett said the most recent letter he received from the governor stated that he will make every effort possible and will meet with departments to attempt to retain senior citizen program funding.

"The states withdrawal of support disturbs me much because our senior citizens built this city, county and state," he stated.

"I'd like to suggest that cuts be made in other departments such as in prisons. They should cut out air conditioning and providing color televisions for prisoners," Bennett stated.

The mayor said he is directly responsible for all public buildings and he is not going to take the building away.

"The senior citizen programs have become a way of life for so many people in our city," he added.

Chamber seeking Miss USA Pageant volunteers

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is seeking 25 volunteers to assist in staffing the Miss USA Pageant office Tuesday, May 11.

Clarice Gustin, chamber executive director, said the Hancock Chamber is joining other chambers on the Coast in assisting with the pageant's office operations.

The Hancock Chamber's hours to staff the office May 11 are from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., Gustin said.

Volunteers are asked to contribute a minimum of two hours, she noted.

Prospective volunteers may call or stop in at the chamber office on US-90, Bay St. Louis for an application form, the director noted.

For information on the program, call Gustin or Melanie Mitchell, chamber secretary, at 467-8044. Miss USA Pageant "Early Bird" ticket packages for the pageant will go on sale beginning Monday at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Box Office.

Ticket chairman Larry Clavert said the ticket package, available for a limited time only, will sell for $30 and will include a ticket to each of the three pageant shows and a ticket to the reception held after each show.

Miss USA opening ceremonies are scheduled for Wednesday, May 5.

The preliminary competition show is Saturday, May 8 and the live CBS telecast of the pageant finals will be Thursday, May 13. All are evening performances at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum.

Clavert noted the $30 "early bird" ticket package contains $48 worth of tickets and will not be available after April 23.

Individual tickets will be available after April 23.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

Although Lenten regulations and ways have been relaxed or lessened, many of us still keep Lent in the old ways...but that's no reason to give such as I, who grew up on the Gulf Coast and in New Orleans, where seafood is almost a way of life, and a delicious one at that.

Seafood gumbo, with crisp French bread...Shrimp Creole...eggplant stuffed with shrimp...fish, and so on and so on—how wonderful to feast on such as these!

And, one of my favorites has always been Trout Meuniere, as served at Arnaud's restaurant in New Orleans...trout with parsley butter, served with potatoes braised, crisp outside, melting inside. I've also made this dish with catfish filets or other firm-fleshed fish. So here's:

TROUT MEUNIERE
2 1/2 to 3 lbs. filets of trout
6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Milk, flour, butter
Lemon or lime juice
Minced parsley

Dip the filets in milk, then in flour. Heat butter in a heavy skillet or sauteuse (saute pan)—barely enough butter to coat the bottom. Cook filets till brown on the underside.

Using a spatula, lest they break up, turn and brown on the other side. As soon as fish flakes easily when a knife tip is applied to the side, remove to a heated serving platter, and sprinkle with lemon juice and parsley.

At this point in the proceedings, you may drain the butter from the pan, and replace it with the six tablespoons of fresh butter. I prefer to swirl a splash or so of white wine around the skillet, scraping up those luscious "burnings". At any rate, heat the butter till barely, barely brown, then pour over the fish and serve at once.

You may add sliced almonds for "Trout Amandine"...pecans for "Trout Pacanne"...or a small can of drained white grapes for "Trout Veronique".

Parboiled chunks of potatoes, browned, go well with this. (Six servings).

Mormons promote Family Evening

More than a decade has passed since The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints placed renewed emphasis on "Family Home Evening" as a crucial program in nurturing the spiritual strength of its youth.

"Since that time, this 'plan for family unity' has blossomed into an important part of the lifestyle of hundreds of thousands of Mormon families worldwide. It has provided a pathway for parents to teach the gospel in the home," a church spokesman reports.

Family solidarity is sought through church-inspired, Monday night get-togethers of religious study and recreation.

The church believes the revived program is combating society's deteriorating moral standards and thwarting potential delinquency by securely binding family ties. "Family home evening helps families build loving relationships between family members," the spokesman says.

At these weekly gatherings, individual Mormon families engage in a variety of activities on a "together" basis. They pray together, sing together, chat about their problems together, talk over family budgets and activities together, study their genealogy together and usually end up having refreshments or a special dessert.

An enthusiastic participant is former Minnesota Twins baseball star Harmon Killebrew, father of five and a convert to the Mormon faith. "The home must be made the center of a child's life, not just a place where he sleeps and picks up some lunch money," the former home run king recently told an interviewer.

"Children should be taught early that they're a special part of their family and not an intrusion into a marriage," he added.

The program springs from the teachings of Jesus Christ that the family is the basic unit of society and the Church.

One of the program's keys is a manual which serves as a suggested starting point for the family's home evening program. "Preparing and printing the manual is a mammoth task. Published annually in 17 languages, the 90-page booklet is without question the most extensive publication of the worldwide Mormon Church," the spokesman reports.

"For example, to print the more than 900,000 copies this year, the paper alone would fill eight train car loads. Placed end to end, the pages would stretch completely around the world," the spokesman says.

Church leaders have been stressing a weekly Family Home Evening since 1915, but it wasn't until 1965 that the church began publishing annual guidebooks to assist the parents.

Total free distribution for these years exceeds 10 million copies.

The 1961-62 edition is built around the theme of "developing a Heaven in our Home" and contains 30 lessons complete with instructions on how to use the manual, charts, illustrations, games, stories, flannel-board characters, and follow-up ideas.

Among the lesson titles are "A Bit of Heaven, Thinking of Others, Enjoying Harmony, Pray Always, Work Is a Blessing, Personal and Family Preparedness, Appreciating Your Country, Making Talents Blossom, Job Assignment Charts, Prayer and Effort to Overcome Conflict in the Home, and Reading the Old Testament. Copies of the manual can be obtained from local leaders and missionaries of the Church.

The popular program actually began in 1915 at the urging of then Mormon Church President Joseph F. Smith, who said that if Mormons gathered their children around them once a week to instruct them in the Gospel, those children would "not go astray."

This year's manual opens with a message from President Spencer W. Kimball and his counsel in the First Presidency—the chief governing body of the Church. Suggestions for the program are provided by church members, leaders and speakers at church meetings.

Also included in the manual are two home-centered activities: "Family Home Evening" and "Family Home Evening with a Difference." The latter is a monthly, family-based activity that encourages parents to teach their children the principles of the Gospel and to strengthen family bonds.

PASSOVER—At Passover, Falashas—Jews from Ethiopia—recall the suffering of exile and their journey to freedom. Each spring, Passover commemorates the Exodus of the Jews, led by Moses, from slavery in Egypt to freedom in Israel more than 3,000 years ago. For the Falashas, now living in Israel, Passover represents not only a recollection of an ancient deliverance, but also a celebration of their freedom today. A special half-hour documentary film on Passover, hosted by Edward Asner, can be seen at 8 p.m., Monday, April 2, on Mississippi ETV. "Passover" was produced by the Mississippi Center for Educational Television and was funded in part by the Meyer Crystal Foundation of Jackson, Mississippi.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." —John 10:10

By Shawn Murphy

MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

A few years ago a movie was released called "The Greatest," starring Mohammed Ali.

The theme song from that movie impressed me a great deal.

It's main thought was that "learning to love yourself is the greatest love of all."

Now, I suppose I have some reservations about this thought, and realize that at first glance this sounds as if it were totally Unchristian.

Such passages as "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me," (Matthew 16:24), seem to be in direct opposition to this line of reasoning.

Even children who ride JOY busses have as their motto: Jesus first, Others second, and Yourself last.

And within the right interpretation, both of these thoughts are valid and quite Biblical.

Yet upon closer inspection, there definitely seems to be a place in the Christian's life for this type of thinking expressed in the song.

In the Gospel of Luke, Jesus agrees with the lawyer who said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself" (Luke 10:27).

When we read this great statement it is so easy to be impressed with the emphasis on our love for God and man (and we should) that we really miss what is central and essential to this great affirmation. The key words in this verse may well be: As Thyself!

That is where it all begins. Our love and concern for God and others begins with our own feelings and attitudes toward ourselves.

Ask yourself this question: "Who am I? Do I like the real me? Do I like the image that others have of me?"

Chances are, if you are honest with these questions, that it will tell you a lot about how you get along with other people as well as how you feel about God. Think about it.

I believe that we look at others through the attitudes that we have toward ourselves. And I believe that "learning to love yourself" is the essential starting place. If you don't like yourself as you are, perhaps you need to read some passages over and over until you come to truly realize the full impact of their message.

"But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us."

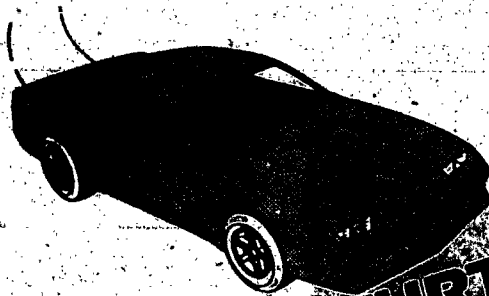

—Romans 5:8, NIV

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life."

—John 3:16, ASV

God loves you more than you can imagine. Yes, even with all of your shortcomings!

John says, "We love, because he first loved us." (1 John 4:19, NIV). When you come to realize how much God really loves you, you will find that your sinfulness and unfaithfulness return to God's love. It is this love that can be your strength and joy.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY B. MIZE III

Mize, Mendus exchange vows at KC Hall

Patricia Kondash Mendus became the bride of Harry B. Mize III in an afternoon ceremony February 27 at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kondash of Trenton, N.J. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Mize Jr. of New Orleans, La.

Judge Bruce Nécasse officiated at the ceremony and musical selections were provided by Gary and Donna Nécasse of Kiln.

Given in marriage by her brother, Michael J. Kondash, the bride wore an Alfred Angelo design of ivory chiffon over taffeta, featuring fitted bodice with Queen Anne neckline accented with re-embroidered chantilly lace. The full bishop sleeves and softly flared skirt were adorned with chantilly lace and the flounced hemline extended to a chapel length train.

She carried a cascade of pastel silk roses and baby's breath and wore a custom designed hairpiece of ivory chiffon and blue silk flowers. Michelle Mize of Baton Rouge, La., daughter of the groom, was maid of honor. She carried a bouquet of carnations and orchid ribbons streamers.

Ernest Daunis of New Orleans, uncle of the groom, was best man.

Ushers were Shane D. Mize and Harry B. Mize IV of Baton Rouge, sons of the groom. Paula G. Roberts assisted at the reception which followed the ceremony.

On return from a wedding trip to Disney World in Orlando, Fla., the couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. F.W. Roberts and family of Silver Creek, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. M.J. Kondash and family of Omaha, Neb. and many guests from the New Orleans area.

Mrs. John T. Crawford of Bay St. Louis announces the engagement and forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Gwendolyn Crawford, to Elwin Wayne Perrot Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Perrot Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bay Senior High School, where she was a Beta honor roll student. She is employed with Adams' Lorraine Flower Shop.

The prospective groom is a graduate of St. Louis High School in Honolulu, Hawaii. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Favre of Bay St. Louis.

Mr. Perrot is employed with Metcon.

The couple will exchange vows in a 3 p.m. ceremony April 17 in First Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis.

Elizabeth Davis to show soap making skills at Folk Festival

By JOE PILET

The Hancock County Folk Art Festival will feature Mrs. Elizabeth Davis who will present a two hour talk-exhibit program on soap making at 10 a.m. Tuesday, April 20.

Mrs. Davis is around eighty years of age and has first-hand knowledge of soap making as well as samples of ingredients used.

She will also answer questions.

Some grandmothers and all great-grandmothers were soap makers. They made it right in their own back yards. Hancock County was a large, sparsely populated area where people lived well on home produced necessities. There were not many stores for trading and going to a store was a long, arduous task.

The early settlers were frugal folks who lived by such sayings as "Waste not, want not," "Willful waste makes woeful wants;" and "Use it up, wear it out, make it do, or do without."

It is somewhere between difficult and impossible to draw a line showing where arts begin and crafts end, and that is why the name Art Folk Festival was decided upon by the Mississippi Art Commission and the Mississippi Library Commission, joint sponsors of the festival which begins on Monday, April 19 and ends Friday, April 23—a full week of heritage-slanted activities with many Hancock County citizens participating.

Soap making, like many crafts, was born of necessity plus an accidental discovery. Just outside the city of Rome, Italy there is a place known as Sapo Hill. About 3,000 years ago worshippers of several gods built altars on this hill site.

They piled great quantities of wood on the altars and sacrificed fat cattle, goats, and sheep on the burning wood to create an aroma pleasant to the gods. It was the soap that was produced in these days to wash garments with dirt or mud before washing to help release the stains.

Quite by accident these women found that the mud gathered from around the Sapo Hill altars had an almost miraculous cleansing power! News spread "Sapo" mud was corrupted to "soap," and soap became a cleansing aid all over Europe.

The secret of the miracle mud was discovered: wood ash in combination with fat forms a substance that releases dirt particles, holding them in suspension until they are rinsed away.

This good news traveled slowly to distant parts, but when colonists from the "old country" were settling in America the art of soap making was commonly practiced.

Soap making was just one of the many chores assigned to "wimmin folks."

They made soap, churned butter, dried out fruits and vegetables, canned or "put up" all sorts of things for winter use. They planted gardens, hoed, weeded, spun, sewed the family clothing by hand and when they weren't very busy they pieced quilts.

Soap making was a once-a-year task, but soap-making day was ever kept in mind. Fat scraps and beef tallow were accumulated, usually stored in a covered earthenware jug (tancia oil doesn't exactly smell like roses). Wood ash was saved when the hearth was cleaned. These ashes had to be purified.

One method was to bore a series of holes in a barrel, slant the barrel over a drip pan, fill it with pine needles, cover that with wood ash, pour water over this and wait for the wood ash lye to drip through the holes.

Later on—much later—this process was replaced by a commercial product called Red Devil lye. It caused many painful accidents. Some serious ones.

On soap making day a fire was built under a large iron wash pot and the fatty oil and wood ash were cooked slowly with occasional stirring with a long handled wooden paddle. When the mixture cooled and congealed it was cut into manageable chunks and stored, probably in the smoke house, for use as needed.

Gradually soap was somewhat refined by the use of more selective oils, by the addition of perfume, and finally it became a large commercial business.

Today's soaps differ from other detergents which are synthetically made in that they are not nearly as effective as a laundry detergent. Soaps are now used almost exclusively in the bath.

From "bar" soap sprang another folk art in the truest sense of the definition—things made by people with their hands from available raw materials.

Soap sculpturing is not a national art, virtually every home has the low, plastic model of the hobbyist's art from a tuffa, possibly an orange stick, and a paper napkin or tissue paper. Soap carvings can be made to look like beautiful old ivory. Carving from soap can be developed into a fine art and an inexpensive hobby with wonderful creative values plus development of a sense of proportion, balance and design.

Soap also got a place in the slang dictionary. Did anybody ever soft soap you?

LUCINDA PERNICARIO, daughter of Joseph L. and Teresa Pernicario of Bay St. Louis, celebrated her first birthday March 26 with a Holly Hobbles party. Guests included paternal grandmother Mrs. Edith V. Pernicario; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Morreale, Vince Pernicario and Jason Pernicario.

REGULATIONS

The Mississippi Press Association requests articles from professional humanities scholars for publication in Mississippi newspapers.

Honorarium

Scholars will receive an honorarium of $100 for each article accepted for distribution to newspapers by the Newspaper Project Committee, an ad hoc group funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities.

Length

Each article should be about 750 words in length, with 1,000 words as a maximum.

Topics

Articles may relate to public policy issues to contemporary concerns to broad themes

Articles are designed for the editorial page of the newspaper and, therefore, the opinion of the author may be stated and solutions to problems suggested.

However, opinions should be couched in rational terms and be adequately explained and defended in the article.

A disclaimer, stating that the opinions expressed in the article are those of the author and not of the Mississippi Press Association nor of the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities, shall accompany each article.

Deadlines

Deadline for submission of articles in the pilot program May 1, 1982.

PROCEDURE

Submission of Articles

Authors should submit six copies of their articles to the coordinator:

Harriet DeCell
14 Woodlawn
Yazoo City, MS 39194
746-3425

Selection

The coordinator will circulate the articles among the screening committee members. Articles selected will be distributed to interested publishers. All publishers have the privilege of editing articles without restriction.

Anonymity

To assure anonymity to the screening committee, authors should identify themselves in a cover letter only.

Credits

Editors will be requested to print the author's name, academic institution, and discipline. Mississippi Committee for the Humanities' credit will be required on all publications. All articles belong to the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities, but those that are not published will be returned to the author.

...

This project is a pilot, designed to be completed June 15. If it is successful, a two-year proposal will be submitted to the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities for funding on July 1, 1982.

SUGGESTIONS

For Writing Articles

- Professional jargon should be avoided
- Paragraphs should be short
- Diction and sentence structure should be clear and understandable to newspaper readers

- Author's style should engage and hold the reader's attention
- Topics should be of interest to readers in Mississippi
- Subjects of national concern should be analyzed from a Mississippi viewpoint

For Topics

Following are topics that might be treated in articles. These suggestions are designed to stimulate the thinking of interested scholars and are not to be indicative of any limitation on subject matter. Broad topics should be narrowed down and the discussion sharply focused in the articles.

- Early childhood education: boondoggle or bonus?
- How is Reaganomics affecting Mississippi?
- What does our tax structure indicate about our value system?
- How do changing family roles affect child care?
- What is the future of the traditional black university in Mississippi?

- How do generations differ in perception of work?
- How are our concepts of justice reflected in our penal system?

Articles should deal with values, principles, priorities, and assumptions. They should attempt to impart a sense of history, a sense of proportion, and a framework in which we can view ourselves and society. They should help readers to distinguish between value judgments and technical decisions, between process and content. They should enable the reader to determine the alternatives that are available for action and to assist in understanding how these alternatives relate to our concepts of freedom, justice, and honor.

Easter Story Hour planned

Story hour for pre-schoolers is scheduled every Thursday at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Library.

Length and content of the program is aimed at four to six-year-olds and those three-year-olds accustomed to group settings.

Pre-school children and their parents or teachers are invited to an Easter Story Hour this week.

The program will begin with 'Humbly Rabbit' by Lorina Ballan.

'Easter Rabbit,' a finger play and 'Son of Easter,' a poem, will be performed as breaks between stories.

A filmstrip, based on the story 'The Selfish Giant' by Oscar Wilde will end the program.

An Easter favor will be given to each child attending.

BERNARD G. JONES, Plaintiff
versus EDWARD I. JONES, Defendant.

SUMMONS
CAUSE NO. 15,478

TO: Edward I. Jones, whose last known address was Highway 90 West, Waveland, MS 39576; but whose present residence and address is unknown. You have been made Defendant in the lawsuit filed in this Court by Bernard G. Jones, Plaintiff, whose address is 4439 Francis Drive, New Orleans, LA 70126.

The Complaint filed against you has initiated a civil action alleging the necessity of his appointment as guardian and seeking to be appointed General Guardian of the Estate of Edward I. Jones.

You are required to mail or hand deliver a copy of a written Answer either admitting or denying each allegation in the Complaint, to Nicholas M. Haas, Plaintiff's Attorney, whose address is P.O. Drawer UU, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

YOUR ANSWER MUST BE MAILED OR DELIVERED NOT LATER THAN THIRTY DAYS AFTER THE 18th DAY OF April, 1982, WHICH IS THE DATE OF THIS SUMMONS. IF YOUR ANSWER IS NOT SO MAILED OR DELIVERED, A JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT MAY BE ENTERED AGAINST YOU FOR THE MONEY OR OTHER RELIEF DEMANDED IN THE COMPLAINT.

You must also file the original of your Answer with the Clerk of this Court within a reasonable time afterward.

Witness my signature and official seal this 2nd day of April, 1982.

VOICE PROBLEMS

Hoarseness lasting more than two weeks, a sudden inability to project the voice at sufficient volume, a whispery quality, or complete loss of voice are the most common symptoms of a voice problem. Voice evaluation and therapy are an important part of Easter Seal services. For more information, contact your local Easter Seal Society, and this year give generously to the Easter Seal Campaign.
